legal process that allows someone to make decisions for another person who cannot do so because of temporary or permanent health problems. These problems can include dementia, autism, or learning disability. The person who needs help is called the adult with incapacity. The person who helps them is called the guardian. Guardianship is not the same for everyone. It depends on the individual situation and the type of decisions that need to be made. Some decisions are about personal welfare, such as health care or living arrangements. Some decisions are about property and finances, such as paying bills or managing assets. A guardian can have both types of powers or only one of them. Guardianship is usually for long-term needs. It can be applied for anyone over 16 years old. If the adult with incapacity is turning 16 soon, the guardianship application should be started at least 6 months before their birthday Guardianship is a legal process that gives someone the authority to act on behalf of an adult who has lost the ability to make decisions for themselves. The Guardian can have different types of powers, depending on the needs of the individual. Some examples of financial powers are handling bank accounts, selling assets, or managing self-directed support. Some examples of welfare powers are choosing where the individual lives, planning their care, taking them on holiday, or agreeing to or refusing medical treatment. Anyone who cares about the individual can apply to be their Guardian, such as a family member, a friend, a solicitor, or an accountant. The Local Authority can also be appointed as a Guardian if there is no one else suitable.
More than one Guardian or substitute Guardians can be appointed. To apply for Guardianship, you need to consult a solicitor who is experienced in this area of law and who can advise you on the best course of action. Your solicitor will prepare an application to the Sheriff Court that explains what powers you are seeking, why they are needed, and who the proposed Guardians are. Your solicitor will also obtain the required reports to support your application.

Your solicitor will prepare an application to the Sheriff Court that explains what powers you are seeking, why they are needed, and who the proposed Guardians are. Your solicitor will also obtain the required reports to support your application. These include two medical reports that assess the individual's capacity and one report that evaluates the suitability of the proposed Guardian. Your solicitor will then represent you in Court and argue your case for Guardianship. Once the Order is granted, your solicitor will register it with the Public Guardian and help you understand your responsibilities as a Guardian. Guardianship is necessary when an adult has not made a power of attorney before losing their capacity and needs someone to make decisions for them regarding their welfare and/or their finances and property. Guardianship is only granted when it is in the best interests of the individual.. Some adults may lose their ability to make decisions for themselves due to illness, injury, or disability. This can happen at any age, but especially after turning 16. The Adults with Incapacity (Scotland) Act 2000 defines when an adult is legally incapable.

This means they cannot act, make, communicate, understand, or remember decisions.

The causes of incapacity can be mental or physical, such as dementia, stroke, or a congenital condition. The adult's decision-making ability is evaluated by medical, legal, and social work professionals. They determine if the adult needs help with their welfare or finances. Information for adults with incapacity Anyone who cares about the adult can apply to be their guardian. The court can appoint one or more guardians to the adult. It is advisable, but not required, to name a substitute guardian in case the main guardian cannot act anymore.

The court will only grant a guardianship order if there is no other way to support the adult's affairs. The court will also consider the adult's rights and interests. The guardian must specify what areas of the adult's affairs they want to manage. They can apply for welfare powers and/or financial powers. Welfare powers are more common than financial powers.. The guardian can make decisions for the adult, such as where they live, what medical care they need, and how they are looked after. Usually, welfare guardianship is needed when the adult does not have a power of attorney. Financial guardianship is needed when the adult has complex financial issues, such as owning property or having investments. If the adult's finances are simple, other options may be available, such as an Intervention Order, an Access to Funds or Benefit Appointeeship. To apply for guardianship, you need to fill out a Summary Application and submit it to the Court with three medical reports on the adult: one from their GP, one from a psychiatrist, and one from a mental health officer. The process can take a long time and can be stressful.

After the Court issues a warrant, the Summary Application is served on the people who are involved in the guardianship case. They have 21 days to object. Then, a Hearing is scheduled. At the Hearing, the Sheriff will decide if the guardianship is granted or not.. A Guardianship Order is a legal document that gives you the authority to make decisions for an adult who cannot do so for themselves. The sheriff will grant the order if it is necessary and beneficial for the adult. You may be eligible for Legal Aid Funding to apply for a Guardianship Order.

Civil Legal Aid is not based on the adult's finances, but Advice and Assistance is. There may be a fee for the initial work before Civil Legal Aid is granted. We can explain this to you and your options. At Caritas Legal, we can help you if you need to act on behalf of an adult who has lost their capacity, or a child who has a disability or a condition that affects their capacity.
